THE ATLANTIC CITY TRIP.

Commissioner Miller Resorts to Taking Oath that He Didn't Do Amis.

Commissioner Miller swore he didn't.

There are others who swear that it would have been to his credit not to have sworn at all.

At any rate it looks very bad, at any time, and especially when a candidate for office, to swear that you did or did not do a particular thing.

Mr. Miller's oath will not convince a single intelligent voter that he told the truth, the actual truth wanted to be known in this matter, when he made the statement over which his printed name appears. And why should it convince any one?

A darkey who swore he didn't steal a single ham from his master's meat house, convinced himself that he was telling the truth, because, instead of stealing a single ham, he stole two hams.

Mr. Miller swears he paid his own car fare and hotel bill. Did he say that the Nelson and Buchanan Bridge Company refunded the money, in any shape or form? He omits that part—and that is the important part.

Every voter in Centre county has his own opinion as to whether Mr. Miller and Mr. Bailey went to Atlantic City as free individuals, or as Commissioners of Centre county accepting the courtesies of a bridge company with which they did an extensive business. The proof is too positive to cover with an oath as full of holes as a nutmeg grater.

Following is the oath to which Mr. Miller subscribed; the oath calculated to cover the "Princess Hotel" register escape:

"Personally appeared before me, a Notary Public in and for said county, Abram V. Miller, a member of the board of county commissioners, who being duly sworn says that he paid his own car fare, amounting to $5.55, on the recent trip to Atlantic City, and that he also at the same time paid the full amount of his board bill, amounting to $12.75, and took a receipted bill at the Hotel Princess, where they were stopping."

This would have been a better form of oath for Commissioner Miller to have signed, and to this Commissioner Bailey could have subscribed:

"We, the undersigned, are the Commissioners of Centre county, and it is none of your (the voters of Centre county) business if we did not pay our own car fare to Atlantic City and the hotel bills at the Princess Hotel."

John Dunlap is a vote getter, and you can put it down for a sure thing that he will not be the minority commissioner. Mr. Dunlap is perhaps not acquainted with the foreign languages, nor is he built for a college president, but he can give you a good hearty shake of the hand, and has that good common sense especially needed in a man when a member of the board of County Commissioners.

Harry J. Jackson, the Democratic candidate for Register, is thoroughly competent in every respect to fill the position to which he aspires. He has never sought office before, and has always been faithful to the party. He is deserving of the support of every Democratic voter. In the past he has stood by the party, and now the party will stand by him.

Messrs. Bailey and Miller have come to the conclusion that it would have been better, more sensible, more business like, if they would have answered the appeal from the Centre County Pomona Grange, asking for an appropriation for the Grange Encampment and Fair. But they will not tell why they refused to do so.

Ellis Shaffer has no business affairs to detract his attention from the office of Sheriff, when elected. He is a poor man, but that is neither a qualification nor should it be a hindrance to his chances for election. He asks a "square deal" now, and he will give a square deal after the election.

As yet Commissioner Bailey has not sworn that the Nelson and Buchanan Bridge Company paid his expenses to Atlantic City, but he can depend on it that the voters believe they did. Mr. Bailey no doubt thinks that it is not necessary to confirm the story with an oath.

If L. E. Swartz, of Walker township, has occasion to transact business at the Treasurer's office with Treasurer Foster's successor, he will find an affable, gentlemanly official there, in the person of Dr. F. K. White.

If the commissioner's clerk becomes sick while John Dunlap and C. A. Weaver are on the board, they will answer the communications, all right. They will not pigeon-hole an appeal from a farmer's organization, and then lie about it afterwards.

A Most Elaborate Display of the Product of the Soil, Grown by Centre County Farmers.

D. C. Keller Farm Sold.

Ex-Treasurer D. C. Keller sold his farm, along the Spring Mills pike, east of Centre Hall, to Dr. S. C. Runkle, of Philadelphia, and Rev. J. M. Runkle, of Williamsport. The farm contains fifty-seven and one-half acres, and has splendid buildings. The price is not given out, but it is intimated that almost one hundred dollars per acre was paid. The Keller home is one of the most delightful places in this section of the county.

The Runkle brothers also purchased the same number of acres from Witmer Grove, son of Thomas Grove, of Centre Hall, which tract lies west of the Keller farm. At one time both tracts were together, being owned by Messrs. Thomas and Jack Grove.

A PROPER SOLUTION.

Candidate Swartz Unconsciously Compliments Dr. White.

No votes can be gained by candidates speaking in a derogatory way of the opposing candidate. Whatever falsehoods are being circulated about Dr. White will do no harm at all, but that does not lessen the littleness of the act on the part of the person who originated them or those who are passing the lie along with evil intent.

It is altogether foolish to think that Dr. White will not take personal charge of the treasurer's office after his election. The very fact that his opponent made the statement to the contrary is evidence that Mr. Swartz is convinced that Dr. White will be elected. He no doubt is impressed with the Democratic candidate's superior fitness for the office, else why should he resort to an attempt to make it appear that Dr. White would not be in the treasurer's office in person, after taking the oath of office?

Now, on the other hand, if Mr. Swartz is elected in November, (which he will not be, but let us presume it), would it not be altogether gratifying to the people of Centre county if he would stay down in Walker township and place a well-qualified, gentlemanly, truthful and honorable deputy in the Treasurer's office? Why, that would be the grandest thing he could do under those presumed circumstances.

Isn't that the proper solution of this substituting business? Mr. Swartz has nothing else to go on, but to say (falsely) that after taking the oath of office Dr. White will be in Phillipsburg, and when business is transacted at the Treasurer's office it will not be with the general Dr. White, but a deputy, and thus the pleasure of meeting the affable, gentlemanly County Treasurer will be lost.

When looked at in the right manner, Mr. Swartz's remark in this connection is altogether complimentary, but it was not meant to be so.

Mr. and Mrs. Orwig, of Hartleton, are the guests of their son Walter, at the home of C. G. Bright.

Harry Wilt and T. Kremer, of Renovo, are visitors at the home of A. S. Stover. They came to do some hunting this week.

Miss Kathryn Frank has just returned from the city with a large stock of fall and winter millinery goods which the ladies are requested to inspect.

Among those who attended Lewisburg fair on Thursday were: Wm. Guisewite, Walter Orwig, Dr. A. S. Musser and wife, John Feidler, John Bowersox, John Stover, Michael Feidler, J. W. Foster, Mrs. Mary Burd and two sons, J. H. Detwiler and wife, Ira Gramley, Misses Nellie Mingie, Nora Bower, Sara Bowersox, Elizabeth Ackler, Lola Stover, and the members of the Citizen's band. A MOTHER KILLS HER SEVEN CHILDREN

Throws Herself on Burning Bed With Bodies.

SHE REVIVES, BUT SOON DIES.

A Horrible Butchery by an Insane Woman in an Illinois Town—Kills Her Children With an Ax, Piles Their Bodies on a Bed Saturated With Coal Oil and Sets Fire to It—Then Throws Herself into the Flames.

Cambridge, Ill. (Special).—The neighbors of Clarence Markham, a farmer living southwest of Cambridge, discovered that the Markham house was on fire. Hastening there to assist in subduing the flames, they were horrified to find the bodies of the seven children lying inside the burning building in a heap on the floor, covered with blood.

After frantic efforts they succeeded in pulling the bodies from the flames, only to find them horribly mutilated, gashed and burned. All were apparently dead, but later signs of life were discovered in the woman and she was revived.

Mrs. Markham at first said a strange man had killed the children and then set the house on fire. Later, and just before dying, she confessed that she had killed the children with an ax. She had attempted to kill herself with the same implement, she said, but failing, she placed the bodies of the little ones on a bed saturated with coal oil, which she set afire. She threw herself on the burning bed and was horribly burned.

After her death a letter was found in the rural mail box addressed to her husband, telling him she was going to kill herself and the children; that she loved him and the children, but believed they would be better off and safer in the arms of the Lord than they were on earth.

The woman is supposed to have been temporarily insane. The husband was away from home at the time. He is prostrated. The family was poor. The children ranged from 10 years to a baby in arms.

The Markhams lived apart from neighbors, the husband being employed as a laborer on a nearby farm. He was compelled to be away from home during the day. Having noted his wife acting queerly for several weeks, he had kept the children, the oldest of whom was but nine years of age, out of school, to be with the mother. She was never known to exhibit violent tendencies previously.

WOMEN HIS VICTIMS.

A Successful Swindler Finally Comes to Grief.

Chicago (Special).—George Moore, 50 years old and of clerical appearance, who admits that for four years he has made a business of swindling women of Chicago, Milwaukee and other places, is under arrest here.

Moore claimed to be an agent for an art journal published by a department store. He offered yearly subscriptions to housekeepers at $1.50 and gave them an order on a department store for six yards of dress goods. He said the store filled these orders free to get the magazine started. He secured subscriptions readily and his weekly receipts are said by the police to have been large.

Leap of Two Old Women.

New York (Special).—Two women, each about 70 years old, jumped from the third-story window of a tenement building in Brooklyn. One of them escaped serious injury; the other's skull was fractured. They were Catherine and Cecilia Hart. When the fire started two men who were passing rushed up to the women's rooms, threw a mattress out on the sidewalk and urged the women to jump. Cecilia landed safely on the mattress, but Catherine fell upon the sidewalk and was badly injured. The two rescuers jumped to the mattress uninjured.

Rich Man Killed By Auto.

Des Moines, Iowa (Special).—Frederick A. Hartman, lawyer, banker and one of the wealthiest men in Northern Iowa, was killed in an automobile accident. He was descending a steep hill, lost control of the machine and was thrown into a deep gulch, the car crushing him to death. Arthur and Frederick Reed, who were with him, were badly hurt.

Vice-President Provost Dead.

Philadelphia (Special).—Sutherland M. Prevost, third vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, died at his home here of a complication of kidney and heart trouble. He was 60 years old. Mr. Prevost had been ailing for more than a year, but his illness did not become serious until last July, when he was compelled to give up his duties. He had been bedridden several weeks.

Railroad Officials at Switches.

Chicago (Special).—Railroad officials worked as switchmen Saturday in the yards of the Grand Trunk Railroad, where the yard men struck. Division superintendent F. W. Egan, Assistant Superintendent W. E. Costello, Yard Master M. J. Conron and others assisted a handful of non-union switchmen to make up trains and throw switches.

Ohio Town Burned Out.

A few minutes later the negro was lynched. O'Brien was one of six indicted for complicity in the lynching and the second to be tried and acquitted.

BACK IN WASHINGTON

Enthusiastic Ovation to President Roosevelt.
CROWDS ALL ALONG THE AVENUE.

Hearty Cheers Greet Him and His Party on the Way From the Station to the White House, Which Was Brilliantly Illuminated—Members of the Cabinet Were in the Line.

Washington, D. C. (Special).—Thousands of his fellow-citizens turned out to welcome President Roosevelt to the national capital, and made his homecoming an occasion for an ovation from the time he was sighted on the platform of the White House. There was no band of music, but the sweeter melody of the cheers of the assembled people made the air ring with hurrahs as his carriage passed slowly up the avenue.

"It was awfully kind of them to come out to greet me," the President remarked to some friends at the White House portico, "and I was deeply, deeply touched by their welcome."

The presidential train came into the station at 6:19 o'clock. On the platform were assembled a dozen or more officials. At their head was Mr. West, the District Commissioner, who was in charge of the arrangements for the welcome, and who was the first to shake the President's hand as he stepped from the train. With the President were his secretary of state, Mr. Root, and Mrs. Root, and the secretary of the treasury, Mr. Shaw. At the station were Secretary Hitchcock, Postmaster General Cortelyou, Mr. Quesada, the Cuban minister; Dr. Rixey, the surgeon general of the Navy; Mr. Palmer, the marshal for the District of Columbia, and others.

A mighty cheer went up as the crowd inside the depot caught sight of the President, which was taken up by the crowds outside of the station and passed along the line as the President was recognized. He shook hands first with the Cabinet members and other officials. Then, giving Mrs. Roosevelt his arm, he walked slowly to his carriage, which was waiting at the Sixth street entrance. As he reached the engine the President thanked the engineer for his safe trip and stopped to shake his hand. In the carriage with the President were Mrs. Roosevelt, Ethel, Kermit and Quentin. Quentin sat on the box with the coachman.

The cabinet officers and the other members of the party followed in carriages, accompanying the President to the White House. The President frequently alighted and bowed to the cheering crowds on both sides of the Avenue, and, during the latter part of the drive, the "hurrahs" became so enthusiastic that the President stood most of the time. Mrs. Roosevelt was greatly pleased with the greeting, and her face was radiant as she bowed to the right and left.

Not since last inauguration day has Pennsylvania avenue held such a crowd as lined it from the station to the White House. Heavy cables, stretched the whole length on both sides, kept the crowds on the sidewalks. Street cars were stopped and vehicles were halted in the side streets as the party came up the avenue. From every flagpole and from many windows flags were flapping in the cool evening breeze.

A brilliant scene greeted the President's eye as he reached the White House. The mansion was illuminated from basement to attic, bathing the whole white structure in a soft, radiant glow.

As the President reached the White House gate he stopped his carriage, and, lifting his hat to the crowd, said: "Good night, good luck and thank you so much for all this."

HIGH HONORS TO BE GIVEN WITTE.

The Russian Statesman Joins Czar on His Yacht.

St. Petersburg (By Cable).—M. Witte left St. Petersburg by boat to meet Emperor Nicholas, who, with his family, is prolonging his vacation trip in the Finnish Gulf. The meeting will take place at Bjorker, the unfrequented little fishing port where the historic interview between Emperor Nicholas and Emperor William took place just before the peace conference, and where the imperial yacht Polar Star is now lying.

It has been reported that Witte will be made a count and receive the Order of St. Andrew, with which Presidents Faure and Loubet were decorated, but a more substantial honor may be his nomination to the post of chief of the cabinet of ministers, the details of which are now being elaborated and which would make him the first subject in the realm, with the right of naming all the ministers except the court and war ministers.

The guests included Admiral Dewey, Lieutenant Commander Wood, Rear Admiral Rogers, Mayor Weaver, of this city; naval officers stationed here and in Washington and prominent civilians.

Jap Commits Suicide.

Nakamer, committed suicide by slashing his throat from ear to ear and then jumping from the roof to an extension, a distance of four stories. He had been brooding over the Japanese-Russian terms of peace, and had told the hotel proprietor that his country had been disgraced.

NEW YORK AS SEEN DAY BY DAY.

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
Denouncing President Castro of Venezuela as a tyrant, a briber and a traitor, Vincent Perez Leon, a Venezuelan in voluntary exile, gave some sensational testimony while being examined before United States Commissioner Gilchrist in the $1,000,000 damage suit brought by the Venezuelan government against the New York and Bermudez Asphalt Company, known as the Asphalt Trust, on the charge that the American company aided the Mateo revolutionists in 1901. The witness referred to Castro in the most scathing language, citing one instance wherein he had caused him (the witness) to be thrown into jail and terribly lashed. Leon declared the Castro government entered into a plot to steal the rights of the New York and Bermudez Company.

An active imagination, inflamed by the morbid adventures of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," which she had recently seen staged, was responsible for 15-year-old Nellie Nussbaum's excursion into "Black Hand" literature. She lives at 255 East Sixty-first street. She desired to play the dual role of the villain and the innocent, and succeeded so well that for weeks she kept an entire neighborhood in a ferment of fear. Selecting her own father and R. E. Saunwalt, a neighbor, as her victims, she wrote skullduggery letters, threatening them in true Mafia style, and signing "Black Hand." Now she has confessed, been forgiven and promised to be good.

Storming with anger, and at the same time weeping copiously, a tall and attractive-looking young woman, who gave her name as Mrs. Adeline Shielor, went to police headquarters and demanded that detectives be sent in pursuit of her husband to arrest him on a charge of bigamy. Then she told a story of the discovery of his alleged duplicity, a fiery interview with another wife, who had threatened to throw vitriol, and finally the supposed flight of the man to Montreal. She said he was living with his other wife at the Graustis, but detectives could not find him, and he is supposed to have gone to Canada.

For the third time since the death of Charles Broadway Rous, the eccentric merchant, in March, 1902, a woman has appeared as a claimant to his estate of $8,000,000. Mrs. Elizabeth Slattery Cowan has begun suit against the estate to recover a claim of $30,250, which she says is due her as a balance on a contract made with the blind merchant in 1892. The most startling feature of Mrs. Cowan's suit is that she accuses Rous of having tricked her into a sham marriage, which he finally found convenient to renounce.

Explaining the early movement of gold to this country this season, a prominent Wall Street banker says that Europe has been an unusually heavy buyer of our securities during the past summer. In opposing habeas corpus proceedings on behalf of Henry Kopp, 28 Manhattan avenue, Williamsburg, now confined in a sanatorium at Amityville, Mrs. Kopp declared he had insisted upon her skating on rollers while he sailed kites, and in one day bought 10 dogs, 15 pictures and 200 padlocks for his trunk. Kopp was in court and denied his wife's charges. Mrs. Kopp, in pleading with the Court to keep her husband under restraint, said he drank 15 to 20 glasses of whisky daily, and sometimes two quarts.

BIG FRAUD ON BANK

Forger Gets $300,000 From New York City National.

DISCOVERED AFTER CHECK CAME BACK

Clever Swindler Presented Check to Cover $300,000 Loan Made to Pearl & Co., Brokers, and Received the Securities Which Had Been Deposited as Collateral—Presented Bogus Check Bearing Names of the Owners.

New York (Special).—By means of a forged certified check of Pearl & Co., ostensibly drawn on the Hanover National Bank, securities valued at $350,000, deposited as collateral for a loan, were obtained from the National City Bank.

The National City Bank is generally understood to be owned and controlled by the Rockefeller and the so-called "Standard Oil crowd."

Conducted by men who showed they had an exact knowledge not only of the business procedure between Wall Street banks and stock-brokerage houses and the clearing-house system, but the specific transaction involved, a loan of $300,000, was supposedly taken up and 24 hours' grace obtained in which to dispose of the securities to innocent third persons.

The facts becoming known just before noon, the best men of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, as well as the police of nearby cities, were exerting every effort within an hour. Their reports at night were that no trace of the missing securities had appeared in any transfer office, although there was a watch upon every one of them.

All detective theories eliminate the possibility of any professional criminals being concerned in the swindle and pursuit, it was alleged, had narrowed down to a certain number of men who alone knew of the transaction in question. Every one of these men is so closely watched that a single suspicious move would bring on arrest.

Pearl & Co. is a banking and brokerage house in 27 William street. The members of the firm are Dyer Pearl and E. F. Slayback, both of whom are members of the New York Stock Exchange. The firm is regarded as wealthy, doing a large business. Wishing to obtain a loan of $300,000 for a short time, Mr. Slayback went to the National City Bank and negotiated through the proper person there a "one-day" loan, or a call loan, as it is termed, at 4 1/4 per cent.

As collateral security for this loan Mr. Slayback offered stock securities of 1,000 shares of United States Steel common, 1,000 shares of Rock Island common, 200 of Missouri Pacific, 47 of American Tobacco 6 per cent. bonds, two $100 bonds of the North American Company, 1,000 shares Metropolitan Street Railway and $20,000 Wabash debenture B bonds.

This collateral had a market value of $350,000, and this proving acceptable the money was paid to Mr. Slayback and by him deposited in the Bank of New York. The note with the securities coming to the loan clerk of the National City Bank was by him deposited in the regular place for such deposits, in a great steel safe, duly ticked, after having passed through the bookkeeping department to be entered in the proper books.

In a bank like the National City, where the loans may amount to $170,000,000, a loan of $300,000 passes without a ripple, and may be one of a dozen of larger size to be adjusted within a minute.

Payment on loans is made by certified check, and those checks are carried about by young men or boys. There was a long line of such messengers before the loan clerk's window on Wednesday morning, when a young man, appearing like the rest, placed a certified check for $300,037.50 through the window, saying he was there to take up the Pearl & Co. call loan with interest for one day at 4 1/4 per cent.

The loan clerk examined the check. It was seemingly drawn by Pearl & Co. on the Hanover National Bank, by which it also appeared to have been certified in the regular way. There was not the least to attract suspicion, and the clerk obtaining the collateral from the safe pushed it through the window and turned to the next transaction.

The check went to the Clearing House, which sent it to the Hanover National Bank for collection, and was promptly marked "No funds." Pearl & Co., when asked to explain, pronounced the check a forgery.

Police and detective action was swift. Before a half hour the transfer office of every security missing was notified of the loss and formally advised not to transfer the stock. Word has come back that no such certificates had appeared.

LEGLESS MAN'S CRIME.

Admits Killing His Wife, of Whom He Was Suspicious.

Chicago, Ill. (Special).—Jacob Hart, who is without legs, dragged himself into the court of Judge Barnes and whispered to Assistant State Attorney Barbour that he was anxious to enter a plea of guilty to a charge of murder. Mr. Barbour explained to Hart the seriousness of such a plea, and that the court had power to inflict severe punishment on it. The crippled defendant, however, said he understood his position and the plea was allowed to be entered.

Hart has confessed that he shot and killed his wife Marie June 15, 1905. He accused her of being too friendly with other men, and when she refused to explain where she had been the night previous he drew a revolver and shot her. He also shot himself in an attempt to commit suicide, but he recovered.

Ordered to Shoot Students.

Madison, Wis. (Special).—As a result of an attempt by a crowd of students to break up the performance of a carnival company showing here, Mayor Curtis gave orders to the police to shoot any student resisting arrest or assaulting an officer. President Vanhise of the State University urged officers and courts to show no discrimination in favor of students, and said that he would expel every student convicted in court, and would suspend all arrested.

WILL ASK FOR RECOGNITION.

Norway Wants to Be One of the Powers.

Paris (By Cable).—M. Loevald, minister of foreign affairs of Norway, gave the Temps Christiania correspondent an authorized statement. He said Norway would take steps to secure an early recognition by the powers. This recognition would cover Norway's independent sovereignty without reference to the question of the government's status as a monarchy or a republic, which would be subsequently determined.

Concerning the offer of the throne to Prince Charles of Sweden, M. Loevald said:

"The Storting's offer still operates, as it has not been formally and officially rejected. But Norway will not make a second offer, nor can we indefinitely wait for an answer from King Oscar. If we do not receive a response very soon we shall consider ourselves relieved and turn elsewhere. Prince Charles of Denmark would then be the most available through language and nationality. Prince Charles of Sweden would have received an enthusiastic welcome had he accepted the throne. He would still be welcome, but the people are no longer enthusiastic."

Asked what form of government Norway would adopt if the monarchy is abandoned, M. Loevald answered:

"We shall have to choose between three kinds of republics; first, a monarchical republic, like France, where the president is virtually king, with a fixed term; second, an absolute republic, like that of the United States, where the president is autocratic in power, and, third, a democratic republic, like Switzerland. This last satisfies us best, and we shall undoubtedly adopt it."

M. Loevald read and approved the interview.

A Woman Who Died of Fatty Degeneration of Heart.

Bridgeport, Ct. (Special).—Mrs. Marie E. Clark, 52 years of age, died Saturday from fatty degeneration of the heart. She weighed 540 pounds, and the undertaker had to have a specially constructed coffin made for her remains. At the funeral to pallbearers, six of them husky piano movers, were necessary to get the casket out of the house at 1206 Main street. The undertaker first planned to have a rigging put up to get the casket out through a window, and engaged a truckman to do the work. The family objected, and the coffin was built so that it could be taken through the door.

Her cries aroused the father, who rushed to her rescue with a ball bat.

As the claim of patriotism is "the last refuge of a scoundrel so the bugaboo of the cost is the first and last resort of a corruptionist who sees reform approaching." Naturally Mr. Plummer invoked this expedient to delay personal registration, but the failure of it then has cost the people tenfold more in graft since than personal registration would have come to in a generation.

There is no record of the vote on the motion of Mr. Dunsmore, of Tioga county, increasing the age limit in the odious Judges' retirement bill from 70 years to 90, but as that bill was a machine measure, and as Plummer had voted for the Judges' salary increase at the previous session, it may be presumed that he voted with the other servile tools of the machine against the amendment. It was adopted, however, and the iniquitous bill was subsequently laughed off the calendars.

Mr. Berry has always been peculiarly fortunate in his relations with workmen and organized labor. Indeed, he freely ascribes his success in the mayoralty campaign to the cordial and earnest support of the artisans in the community. But he has never had a labor strike or serious difficulty with his employees on account of wages or differences of any kind.

Commissioner Miller swears that he "took a receipted bill at the Hotel Princess, where they were stopping." The question to naturally arise is whether Mr. Bailey and Mr. Buchanan took anything.

It looks as though Mr. Bailey will not deny it. He hasn't been in politics as long as brother Miller.

LUTHERAN SYNOD

At Pine Grove Mills.—Next Meeting at Middleburg.—Rev. Diehl Elected President.

The fifty-second regular meeting of the Lutheran Synod of Central Pennsylvania was held at Pine Grove Mills, September 27th to October 1st.

The opening sermon was preached Wednesday evening and the Holy Communion celebrated. Following this, Rev. M. J. Kline, Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, spoke in the interests of that board.

The work of Foreign Missions is progressing admirably, having entirely outgrown the resources of the board, both as to money and missionaries. The difficulty that so long confronted the African mission is now practically solved, and the work will be extended into the interior as rapidly as resources will permit.

The regular routine of business was taken up Thursday morning. After the enrollment and appointment of committees, the president and secretary read their annual reports and placed them in the hands of the proper committees. Great unanimity prevailed in all matters claiming the attention of Synod.

The treasurer's report was very encouraging, showing a substantial increase in the benevolent offerings of the year.

Rev. W. K. Diehl invited Synod to hold its convention in 1906 in the Lutheran church at Middleburg. This invitation was accepted.

Friday afternoon the Synod, as a body, visited State College. The Central R. R. furnished a complimentary train for this trip. The President of the College had conveyances waiting the arrival of Synod to take them to the various points of interest. Synod was so greatly impressed with the need of a Lutheran church at State College that a committee was appointed to arrange for preaching services at this point.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Rev. W. K. Diehl, Middleburg; secretary, Rev. W. D. E. Scott, Lysville; treasurer, Rev. C. L. McConnell, D. D., Millburg; statistician, Prof. T. C. Houtz, Se. D.

Lloyd W. Walter, Sellersville, and Charles Wier, Astronburg, were licensed to preach for one year.

W. A. Guis, Juniata county, and H. O. Reynolds, pastor at McClure, were ordained.

The retiring president, Rev. J. M. Resnick, served for three years, the limit of the term of office under Synod regulations.

A Judicious Inquiry.

A well known traveling man who visits the drug trade says he has often heard the druggists inquire of customers who asked for a cough medicine, whether it was wanted for a child or for an adult, and if for a child they almost invariably recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The reason for this is that they know there is no danger from it and that it always cures. There is not the least danger in giving it, and for coughs, colds and croup it is unsurpassed. For sale by C. W. Swartz, Tusseyville; F. A. Carson, Potters Mills.

WAYS OF THE PERSIAN.

The Queer Houses and the Water Supply of Yezd.

Persia is mostly desert, but desert in Persia is of many kinds. The ordinary desert is good soil and where it can be watered is extremely fertile.

Generally it has a hard but rather gravelly surface. The oases are not really very different in character from the desert, however, according to the Rev. Napier Malcolm, in his book "Five Years in a Persian Town."

Water is brought from the mountains in a most curious manner. It is found near the hills at depths varying from sixty to a hundred yards below the surface. "From the hills to the center of the plain," says Mr. Malcolm, "there is a considerable though very gradual declivity, so when the original shaft has been sunk and water found, perhaps at 300 feet below the surface, a long line of similar shafts is sunk toward the center of the plain at distances varying from twenty to forty yards, the line sometimes stretching for more than forty miles until a point of desert has been reached that lies as deep down as the original water level. Then all the shafts are connected at the bottom by burrows just big enough to afford passage to a man; the water is let in and appears in an open ditch in the center of the desert."

Houses that are not very new are always more or less tumble down, but no man wants his house to last forever. "Nobody can realize the damage that can be done in a town like Yezd by a really wet day," says the same writer. "Some while ago we had twenty-four hours of rain, which destroyed, I believe, about a couple of hundred roofs and, what is worse, caused the older aqueduct pits to fall in, blocking the water supply in some parts of the town for three months. Is there any other town in the world where a little extra rain causes a three months' drought? There is a story in Teheran about a Dutch ambassador who was so afraid of the roof falling that in wet weather he invariably slept under the table. However, he was a very tall man, and when the catastrophe happened he got his foot crushed."

In Yezd houses are built only for protection against heat. In winter the citizens "grin and bear it," the merchants close their offices and stay at home, and only the smaller tradesmen and artisans go to the bazaars. The heating arrangement consists of a wooden stool under which a charcoal brazier is placed. Over stool and brazier a heap of rugs and quilts is placed, and the family tuck their legs under the wraps, squatting on the floor.

Why They Laughed.

One evening Carlotta Patti sang in a large town. Just as Ferranti, the buffo, was leading her out of the door upon the platform some one in the audience behind cried out to him that his coat had burst at the seam in the back. It was too late to go back, for the audience had seen him, and the two singers advanced to the footlights. The knowledge of this mishap took all the fun out of Ferranti, and the duet, which was sung in Italian, was so dolefully devoid of its usual humor that Patti noticed it before they were half through, and, dropping the text of the duet, she fitted the following words to it, in Italian: "What is the matter with you tonight? I don't understand your nervousness. Nobody laughs at you!"

Whereupon Ferranti, in the mellifluous Italian, responded: "By the saints, I have burst my coat! Everybody will laugh when I go off the stage if they 'don't now!'"

At this unexpected interchange of personal feelings Max Maretzek and his orchestra began to laugh immoderately. Then the people in the front seats, seeing the orchestra and the artists laughing, joined in themselves, and the merriment presently broke out into applause all over the house.

"Ah," said one of the papers next morning, "there is always something majestic in Ferranti's singing of that song. People burst into sympathetic laughter without being able to tell why!"

Insomnia and Indigestion Cured. "Last year I had a very severe attack of indigestion. I could not sleep at night and suffered most excruciating pains for three hours after each meal. How to Cure Corns and Bunions.

First, soak the corn or bunion in warm water to soften it; then pare it down as closely as possible without drawing blood and apply Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice daily, rubbing it vigorously for five minutes at each application. A corn plaster should be worn a few days to protect it from the shoe. As a general liniment for sprains, bruises, lameness and rheumatism, Pain Balm is unequalled. For sale by C. W. Swartz, Tusseyville; F. A. Carson, Potters Mills.

Over the Line With Dad.
From the Topeka State Journal.
If I could be a boy again,
On the wings of fancy loose,
Free from the cares that make us men,
In my dear old dad's caboose;
Of all there was I now recall
That made my boy heart glad
I wish that I might go again
Over the line with dad.
Chums with the brakemen laugh and joke,
Ride on the engine awhile,
Washing away the grime and smoke,
Standing up straight in the aisle;
Climbing up on the counter high,
O, what a treat for a lad!
Coffee, sandwich and custard pie—
Over the line with dad.
Sit way up in the lookout, too,
With an eye on the jostling cars,
Climbing there in the night to view
The way of the lanterned stars;
Snuggled close to the truest friend,
That ever a fellow had,
Wishing the trip might never end—
Over the line with dad.
I grudge no one the train de luxe,
With its splendid woods and brass,
For fond I keep in memory's books
A record none may surpass;
Ah, could I only by magic ruse,
Take any trip to be had,
I'd rather ride in that old caboose,
Over the line with dad.
The old caboose has gone long since,
And its crew has whistled the sky,
Fancy still with its radiant tints
Illumines the days gone by;
And when God's caller comes round
For me,
My heart shall be far from sad,
If only I know that I'm to go
Over the line with dad!

ACCURSED OF ALLAH.

BY MAJOR R. L. BULLARD.

They haunt the sweet potato patches and rice fields of the Moros, these wild hogs of the Island of Mindanao. As the most omnivorous of animals, they live, thrive and fill the land where other game, monodietists, and perish from the earth. Roots, barks and nuts, fruits, seeds, grasses, vegetables and herbs, bugs, grasshoppers, worms and insects, snakes, "varmints," all flesh, living or dead, fresh or putrid, are their food. "They come out near sunset," the old dato told me, "and at night they break our fences and destroy our potatoes and rice. We kill but few of them, because their touch defiles a Mussulman. They are the vilest of all animals; the nonnies, which are devils, live in them and they are accursed of Allah." The young dato smiled furtively. "But we will show you how to get them," said he.
The dato's seed lands lay in a stretch of gently rolling hills covered with tall, thick cogon grass, broken frequently with hollows of deep, impenetrable thickets of bamboo and brush loaded with convolvulus and all the vines, creepers and parasites of the tropics. Here and there were clumps of fruit-bearing trees and lines of graceful, feathery, lyre-like bamboos, marking the sites and earthen walls of Moro cottas, forts, long since abandoned by restless masters for fresher fields and newer homes. Yonder was an old sweet potato patch, covered still, notwithstanding long human neglect, with luxuriant vines—for these were cultivated and thrived by the very roofing they relieved of the wild hogs seeking food. Many pig-trails crossed each other in the tall cogon, which, close kin to sugar cane, had, also, like the old potato patch, been ploughed about for its sweet roots by the wild hogs. Over there a little way was a bit of rice ground fenced closely with strong bamboo slats and ratan withes and set about with rattle-traps of dry bamboo. A Moro watchman dozing in a miniature tower from time to time jerked a cord and set his traps rattling and clattering to frighten away marauding boars and birds. Surely this was the spot, none better, for the wild boar. Food, cover, bed, safety were all here.
Dismounting, I tied "General Baldwin" to a shrub and began a creeping hunt among the trails and cogon. I gradually wandered to where a clump of wavy bamboo marked the site of an ancient cotta. To such places the wild boar loves to come and ruminate and ponder. I loitered to watch. It was a dreamy afternoon, with the caressing air of an Indian summer. Gradually I came under the spell of the day and the place and, forgetting my errand, fell to wondering what had been the lives of the savage men and women who once dwelt within these cotta walls, then to listening to the rustle of the grass and the ghostly, hollow groaning and creaking of the bamboo stems, swaying against each other by the wind.
After a time I began to perceive that I was not the only occupant of the cotta; a big, black, bristling object emerged slowly, majestically, from the rank grass in one corner. I was startled. Was it a bear? Yes? No? Then I remembered. There he stood, a lordly boar, young and vigorous, slowly turning his broad left side. My heart jumped, my blood surged and roared in my ears. It was a moment of boundless joy and elation. I stood and gazed. My quiet gradually returned and my carbine went slowly to my shoulder. I was deliberate, I stopped to feel my joy to prolong my moment of delight; then I put my whole nerve and feeling and soul into the touch of the trigger for so fine a game. It was an easy shot. He fell, then half rising, but with pain and death in his eye and face, turned firely upon me. A coup de grace ended it.

"Good! good!" cried the young dato, running up, and in his enthusiasm, out of sight of his father, he forgot his Mohammedanism, and together we soon had the great boar gutted and cinched fast across the withers of "General Baldwin," who conducted himself most commendably under his unusual load.
My shots had doubtless scared away the game near by, so I remounted. We moved on past the little field with its lone Moro watchman, along a trail winding about the forest of cogon that reached to the horse's withers.
"Swish! swish! swish! swish!" My neighbor's horse shied violently and "General Baldwin" plunged and snorted. There was a great commotion in the grass on both sides of us.
"Peegs, peegs, Senior," cried my Filipino companion.
I was off "General Baldwin" in an instant and abandoned him to chance. We had surprised them and were in the very midst of a herd of wild hogs that were flying wildly in all directions, plunging and floundering in the thick, tangled grass. One startled me on my right another in front, another on my left. I could hear them everywhere, but one does not shoot a rifle by ear. Would every one of them escape? I was badly rattled when at last a foolish young sow did for an instant show herself, dashing in wild flight across a little opening. I fired wildly, desperately, with the feeling that something must be done. She tumbled headlong, dead as a door nail, her brains blown out.
Knocked me down with a feather? Easily. Never was there such luck, never such a chance kill; but with a supreme effort I hid my surprise, recovered my composure and walked up in the most matter of fact way, as if such kills were everyday affairs with me. From my Moro friends from behind I heard the "Cluck! cluck! cluck!" of the tongue in the roof of the mouth, with them the sign of wonder and admiration.
My Filipino had caught "General Baldwin" and now led him forward to the dead sow, but another mounted member of the party kindly took her and saved my good mount from the triple load with which he was threatened.
It was near nightfall. "Let us go," said one, "to the dump; they will be coming there for supper."
The dump was the depository of the swill and other refuse of the little army camps. It was at the foot of a mesa-like hill; on all sides cogon, beloved resort of the wild hog; beyond and below a broad fringe of forest, brush and vines on the broken slopes of a volcanic lake. Here were safe refuge and cover. A stub of a tree on the mesa slope gave good view. I slipped into it and confidently waited for the pig-appetite to fetch me game; for that appetite, while the saving, was, I knew, also the undoing of all pig-kind. Its omnivorousness enables them to live well where others starve; but its sharp insatiable greed drives them remorselessly to danger and death that others risk not.
The scavenger had deposited his swill; its scent pervaded the evening air; covering darkness was nigh. My wait was long.
The sun had set, which in the tropics means quick darkness. Soon my eyes could no longer discern anything; but after perhaps half an hour of quiet and darkness, I heard from the direction of the dump a rustling in the grass, followed by numerous little grunts of quiet satisfaction—pigs in friendly converse and congratulation. The herd had come. They had found swill for their stomachs. They never missed their dead companions nor long remembered the shots that had lately rung out over the slopes and breaks.
I stealthily slipped from my bush and crept down through the tall cogon. They were scattered now, hidden in the grass and shadows, intent only on filling their stomachs, dead to all things else. "Smack, smack, smack," went their mouths, on this side and that. How they were enjoying it! I was right in their midst. But I could not see them.
I crept on, peering about with wide-open, strained eyes. At last I began to make out a dark object, a pig intent on something, some of the celebrated commissary roast beef, perhaps, in an old can, which he rolled and rattled with impatient greed. I sneaked right up to him, close enough, it seemed, almost to prod him with my carbine. He was busy, very; I was smiling. It was comical. I could hardly keep from laughing outright, it was such a joke on that boar. I was half tempted to jump at him and cry "Boo!" to enjoy his surprise and confusion. But I didn't.
It was hard to see; aiming was out of the question in that shadowy place, so after a little I just prodded my carbine forward at him and fired. A flash, a squeak, a plunge in the grass, and quiet. I had missed him.
I stood up, irresolute. It was hard to thus quit the hunt; yet it was dark. Would there be a moon? Perhaps; I believed I remembered a moon the night before. But who ever heard of shooting pigs by moonlight? However, I crept back to my vantage on the hill, sent the young dato to camp with my game, and waited for a time.

I was rewarded. Came the moon in all her silvery tropical splendor, and so soon as it was light enough to see a little, a shadowy nose was thrust out of a bunch of grass from the side of the jungle, a hundred yards below me. It was followed by a bulky head and stalwart shoulders. The nose was in the air to take the scent. It was filled quickly with the strong odor of the swill. Thereupon his greedy stomach picked him onward with a start, to stop again as suddenly after a few steps; but only for an instant; for nose and stomach quickly got the better of caution and on he came again with a rush, then stopped. It was plain that he knew the spot was full of danger, but starting and stopping, dashing forward and halting, alternately driven by greed and held back by fear, and the instinct of the wild, on he came and passed thus fitfully over half the distance between us. Then he stopped. The coarse head, gnarled and knotted with knobs, wattled and tusked, turned slowly, listening attentively, and the little eyes keenly swept the moonlit mesa slopes and ridge. I could see all the workings of his conflicting pig emotions. Fear was in his attitude and in his motions, but greed, insatiable and irresistible, was in his stomach and sent him on. I waited with surging joy, regarding him attentively but with thumping heart, relying still on the swill-scent and the pig-stomach.
I laid my finger on the trigger, then hesitatingly withdrew it. I felt a twinge of shame at the low advantage which my human reason was taking of his brute weakness. But he was fine, he was a monster, and suddenly he seemed to get wind of me; for now, after a last rush, right at his food, he raised his nose high in the air and with a deep snort looked upward, straight at me. But he did not flee; he stood, he had nerve. My compunction was gone; the hunter's passion rushed over me.
For an instant the smoke hung over the muzzle. When it cleared, I saw the grass faintly tremble where he had stood. He was laid low, a warrior marked with the scars of many boar battles, an old giant of whom any hunter might be proud.—Field and Stream.
AMERICAN PRUNES.
The Growth of Production and Our Export Needs.
In the United States 100,000,000 pounds of prunes are eaten yearly. Prior to 1886 the supply came almost wholly from France and the Danubian provinces and sold under the designation of "French" or "Turkish" prunes. In the year referred to, prunes of American growth appeared on the market and with each succeeding year the supply has increased until the importation of foreign fruit has been reduced to extremely small proportions. Much the larger portion of the prune supply is from the southern part of California, where climatic peculiarities are extremely favorable for its production. In Santa Clara county alone there are 3,700,000 trees growing on 37,000 acres—100 to the acre. The quantity of prunes somewhat exceeds 110,000,000 pounds—more than enough for the requirements of the whole country, but the excess, with that raised in other localities, is needed to supply the export demand from Great Britain, Germany and France. The first plum trees planted 40 years ago in California were shoots from the "Petite" and "Epinouse" varieties from France. The original varieties have been greatly improved upon.
Ten thousand trays of fruit spread out in one unbroken tract may be seen in Santa Clara in the drying season. When sufficiently cured the prunes are stored in separate bins and there allowed to "sweat," this process taking from ten to twelve days, when they are ready for marketing.
Value of the Weather Man.
In spite of the staid jokes about the weather man, it is probable that for every dollar spent on the Weather Bureau ten dollars are saved. At the time of the Mississippi flood of 1897, $15,000,000 worth of live stock and other property were saved as a result of warnings issued a week ahead. Signals displayed for a single hurricane have detained in port vessels valued, with their cargoes, at $20,000,000. The West Indian stations, established in 1898, inform us of hurricanes as soon as they begin. The course of the hurricane that caused the Galveston flood was charted for a week before it struck our shores—for hurricanes move slowly. Eighty-five per cent of the forecasts now come true, and by the aid of rural free delivery last year to farmers, many of whom could not have had them five years ago.—Country Life in America.

WOMAN'S WORLD
HYGIENIC PHILOSOPHY.
A woman should study the matter of taking cold and assure herself that not to her contented ignorance and amicable blunderings are owing the discomforts and the dangers which the winter colds entail upon herself and those committed to her keeping. Clothing does not in itself create warmth. It only retains in a body the warmth already there. A silver paper weight lies on the table, and it being a cool day, the silver is cool to the touch. Wrap the silver in a blanket and leave it an hour. At the end of that time the paper weight feels as cold as ever.
Whereas the philosopher once again begins to reason, her conclusions being that it is more important to have a good supply of natural heat within than simply to pile on coverings without.
This gives opportunity for another experiment. Opening the window, she breathes the fresh air deeply and profoundly into her lungs a dozen times. She finds that the sense of warmth in her whole body has greatly increased, although she opened the window to the colder outdoor air and added no garments to those already worn. She sees for herself that when she takes plenty of oxygen into her lungs it through her, and warms her more than if she had put on a heavy cloak.
Here are two truths she has learned—the swift flow of blood full of oxygen creates natural warmth in her, and a skin that keeps its pores closed to the outer air and quickly gets rid of its own moisture keeps that natural warmth in her body instead of evaporating it.
A cold is what the name implies, a chilling of the blood's natural temperature which should be about 70 degrees Fahrenheit. The moment the temperature falls much below that the whole body is affected. Morbid secretions take place in all the organs of the head, and then it means cold in the head, or it may be the lungs, and then there is a cough.
The digestion is affected and inflammation of various membranes is set up, with consequent soreness or fever. There are many good remedies for colds, but the best remedy is not to take cold at all. The best way to do this is to have so good a supply of natural warmth within that outside temperature cannot easily lower it.
This is achieved by keeping the blood always full of the oxygen in fresh air and flowing swiftly by reason of plenty of exercise. Next, by letting the skin do its natural work of being a warm, elastic, water-tight covering for the flesh, keeping it so by the free use of cold water instead of the warm water, which opens the pores and relaxes the skin's elasticity, and by clothing it in such a way that its excretions are soaked up and carried off quickly.
This is only a signboard pointing the way to the road along which a real philosopher will travel. She will go much farther, learning that the lungs of a woman who sleeps warmly covered to the chin, with cold air pouring into her chamber from a wide open window, are storing up extra oxygen all night, so that she has a reserve force of heat and vigor to call upon next day to help ward off colds and chills.
She will find that the warmth flannels give may be attained by a swift plunge bath into icy water in the morning instead of by languid dabling in warm waters, and she will find that disease and suffering may be repelled by a vigorous, wholesome body.—Chicago Tribune.
NEW STYLES IN SHIRT WAISTS.
In fall and winter styles the new models in shirt waists are as interesting as their predecessors of the summer, which goes to prove that notwithstanding the long reign of the separate waist its popularity is by no means on the wane, and far from being discarded as prophesied, it is growing in grace and beauty and developing greater possibilities than ever before, says the Washington Times. Although many maintain that costumes made entirely of one material are in better style than a waist and skirt made of contrasting fabrics of colors or tones, a separate waist has so many excellent virtues to recommend it that it still holds up lace in the popular liking and will be in demand not only for practical purposes, but for more ceremonious occasions as well. The advanced models appear in both elaborate and tailored styles, and in the selection afford a wide range for individual taste.
The changes in the general lines and cut of the new waists are not so noticeable variety being found mostly in the material and form of decoration. Among the fall fashion are many old time favorites, one of which is the surplice waist that has proved so becoming. The Marguerite and Dutch necks are seen in the lace, net and silk waists, and in the lingerie waists the collarless neck is as much favored as ever.
The changes in the new models worthy of note show the underarm seams more deeply curved and less Loebster Pot.

Make a chain of fishermen with a third of the players. The rest of the company will be loebsters. Wide boundary lines are made, and the fishermen join hands and try to close up about one of the loebsters. As this person is free to move about, the long chain of fishermen have trouble trying to capture him. When caught, he joins the chain of fishermen until the last loebster is captured. The loebsters then drop out of the chain and the fishermen enclose them. A lively struggle follows until the chain is broken. This ends the game.

THE KEYSTONE STATE

Latest News of Pennsylvania Told in Short Order.

The war inaugurated upon the vendors of embalmed meats in this State by the Pure Food Department is having a good effect. This is evident from the report of James Foust, chief of the agents in Pittsburgh. Within the last ten days out of sixty samples purchased fifty-nine were free from chemicals, and one, purchased from the agent of a St. Louis packing-house, was doctored. There has also been a remarkable falling off in the sale of adulterated milk. Of 1150 milk samples secured only 25 were found to be adulterated. A year ago out of 600 samples purchased in the same section 160 were found to be adulterated. The chemists of the department are now analyzing about seventy samples of maraschino cherries, used in making the seductive cocktail, with a view to discovering whether they are covered with coal tar and other dyes and preserved with injurious acids and sulphates, and about 100 samples of ketchup are under examination, tests showing that they are adulterated with harmful preservatives and poisonous color ingredients.

The Mountain City Company, of Altoona, has been chartered at the State Department. It is backed by Philadelphia and Pittsburgh capitalists and has a capitalization of $250,000, with $50,000 surplus. Lawyer A. S. Fisher is the temporary treasurer of the company, which will be organized in a short time. The intention is to build a home and begin business forthwith. The stock has been nearly all taken up.

He had large business interests in Southern Pennsylvania and Maryland.

COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s "Weekly Review of Trade" says:

"Current trade shows a distinct gain in comparison with the same time last year; crop reports are reassuring and evidences of continued activity are noted in almost every department of industry."

"A wholesome growth, without the threatening danger of reckless inflation of prices, is a commercial condition greatly to be desired, and these elements are recorded in the majority of dispatches."

"Fall trade is now well under way, especially encouraging results being achieved in dry goods, millinery, footwear and all lines of wearing apparel, while mercantile payments are unusually prompt for the season. There is a steady consumption of groceries and other staple articles of food, and in furniture, crockery and numerous household utensils the distribution is vigorous."

"Manufacturing plants in the leading industries receive large orders, a heavy tonnage of iron and steel business being placed and machinery houses making very cheerful reports; footwear shops have ample orders in sight; flour mills and saw mills have enlarged production, and the fuel markets reflect the stimulus of active factories."

Bradstreet's says:

"Wheat, including flour exports, for the week are 2,178,428 bushels, against 1,682,404 last week, 864,373 this week last year, 3,050,430 in 1903 and 5,077,070 in 1902. Corn exports for the week are 1,272,195 bushels, against 1,226,063 last week, 657,399 a year ago, 779,239 in 1903 and 74,952 in 1902."

SUFFERINGS UNTOLD.

A Kansas City Woman's Terrible Experience With Kidney Sticks.

Mrs. Mary Cogh, 20th St. and Cleveland Ave., Kansas City, Mo., says:

"For years I was run down, weak, lame and sore. The kidney secretions were too frequent. Then dropsy puffed up my ankles until they were a sight to behold. Doctors gave me up, but I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and the remedy cured me so that I have been well ever since, and have had a fine baby, the first in five that was not prematurely born."

CRAFTY MAN WINS OUT.

Neat Way in Which He Dupes the "Angel of His Life."

Mr. Smuthe reaches home for dinner and finds his wife in an unusually taciturn mood.

"They go through the meal almost quietly; the only speech being from him."

The evening progresses in the same fashion.

At last he asks:

"Aren't you feeling well to-night?"

"Oh, yes," she tells him, coldly.

"Then what is wrong with you?"

"You ought to know."

"How should I know? Have I said or done anything to offend you?"

"No; you haven't said anything or done anything."

"Then what on earth makes you act this way?"

"I suppose you have forgotten what day this is?"

"No. This is the 25th day of August, 1905."

"And it is my birthday, and you forget that it was, and you never forgot it before, and you—"

"One moment, my dear. I did not forget that it was your birthday."

She smiles through her tears, thinking of diamond sunbursts and things like that.

"Oh, you dear thing!" she exclaims.

"You did not forget it, then?"

"No. What birthday is it?"

"Why, my thirtieth, of course."

"Well, angel of my life, do you not think it is more gracious of me to seem to overlook your birthday than to remind you of how old you are growing?"

Next day she tells the neighbor that dear John is the thoughtfulness man that ever lived.

Forcing the Youthful Mind.

There is very general cry that children are becoming every day less childlike, that they are being pressed far beyond their strength. Of course, the fanatics tell us that it is not so, that all this outcry is the outcome of misplaced sentiment and of ignorance of the true inwardness of educational methods. But this we know, that forced minds are very like forced plants—curiosities, perhaps, but not such as the experienced cultivator keeps as "stock." Nature is very jealous for her nurslings. You may fool considerably with adult specimens, even to the degree of making them hideous; you may experiment almost indefinitely with this, and the other kind of pruning, grafting, but let a cold wave or a hot wave but once blow upon your tender nurslings and they are gone without hope of resurrection.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Desert Air for Rheumatism.

A German physician has discovered that the air of the Egyptian desert is about as free from bacterial life as the Polar regions or the high seas. Tubercle bacilli are killed when exposed six hours in the sunlight. He considers the desert especially suitable for rheumatism and patients suffering from kidney diseases and tuberculosis.

Bridge Built on Wool.

At the little town of Waldebridge, Cornwall, England, there is a bridge of a unique character. Owing to the strength of the current, ordinary stone foundations would not hold, and numerous devices were tried without success. Eventually bags of wool were sunk in the stream and the piles driven in, and this strange foundation has proved wonderfully firm and satisfactory.

A Young Lady From New Jersey Put Her Wits to Work.

"Coffee gave me terrible spells of indigestion which, coming on every week or so, made my life wretched until some one told me that the coffee I drank was to blame. That seemed nonsense, but I noticed these attacks used to come on shortly after eating and were accompanied by such excruciating pains in the pit of the stomach that I could only find relief by loosening my clothing and lying down."

"If circumstances made it impossible for me to lie down I spent hours in great misery."

"I refused to really believe it was the coffee until finally I thought a trial would at least do no harm, so I quit coffee in 1901 and began on Postum. My troubles left entirely and convinced me of the cause."

"Postum brought no discomfort, nor did indigestion follow its use. I have had no return of the trouble since I began to drink Postum. It has built me up, restored my health and given me a new interest in life. It certainly is a joy to be well again." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

FOUND AN EASY VICTIM.

Boston Photographer Falls to Very Old Trick.

A man went into a Boston photographer's gallery the other day. Men have done this before and survived—even though taken from life. The man was on the usual errand, a fact that he carefully imparted to the artist.

"Make the best presentation you can of me, gentle sir," he said in a courteous way. "And while I need but one, a dozen will not come amiss. Let them be your premier cabinets, for I would not curtail the expense."

The photographer rubbed his hands together in a purring way.

"I will try to satisfy you, sir," he said. "Pray be seated."

The subject smiled as the artist posed him.

"I will admit," he said, "that I desire to look my very best. A heart's happiness this portrait makes."

"I fully comprehend," said the artist. The sitters glanced at his vest.

"Seems rather dull and tame to me," he said. "Ought to be brightened up a little. Here, suppose you let me wear that watch and chain of yours just as a catchy outward decoration."

So the smiling photographer passed him the gold watch with its heavy chain and the sitters donned them with perceptible pleasure.

"That'll go fine with the rest of the makeup," he said, and a moment or two later after the photographer had stepped out to get a dry plate or something he returned to find that the watch and chain had gone with the rest of the makeup to parts unknown.

And all this happened in simple old Boston.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

India's Odd Ways.

A famous traveling correspondent says that the people in the southern provinces of India do everything on the ground. They never use chairs or benches, but always squat upon the floor, and all their work is done upon the ground.

Carpenters have no benches, and they place a board they place it on the earth before them and hold it fast with their feet. The blacksmith has his anvil on the floor; the goldsmith the tailor and even the printer use the floor for benches, and it is the desk of the letter-writer and the book keeper.

It looks queer to see a printer squatting before a case of type and even queerer to see a person writing letters with a block of paper spread out before him on the ground. But that is the Hindu custom.

You find it everywhere throughout India, just as you will find everybody, men, women and children, carrying loads, no matter how light or how heavy, upon their heads. If an errand boy is sent with a parcel he never touches it with his hands, but invariably carries it on the top of his turban. The other morning I counted seven young chaps with "shining morning faces" on their way to school, every one of them with his books and slate upon his head.

Masons' helpers, who are mostly women, carry bricks and mortar upon their heads instead of in hods, on their shoulders, and it is remarkable what heavy loads their spines will support.

At the railway stations all the luggage and freight is carried the same way. The necks and backs of the natives are developed at a very early age.

If a porter can get assistance to hoist it to the top of his head, he will stagger along under any burden all right. I have seen eight men under a grand piano and two men under a big American roller top desk, and in Calcutta, where one of the street railway companies was extending its tracks, the workmen carried the rails upon their heads.

Old Couple Take Marriage Vows.

WORKING WOMEN

Their Hard Struggle Made Easier—Interesting Statements by a Young Lady in Boston and One in Nashville, Tenn.

All women work; some in their homes, some in church, and some in the whirl of society. And in stores, mills and shops tens of thousands are on the never-ceasing treadmill, earning their daily bread.

All are subject to the same physical laws; all suffer alike from the same physical disturbance, and the nature of their duties, in many cases, quickly drifts them into the horrors of all kinds of female complaints, ovarian troubles, ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, leucorrhoea, or perhaps irregularity or suppression of "monthly periods," causing backache, nervousness, irritability and lassitude.

Women who stand on their feet all day are more susceptible to these troubles than others.

They especially require an invigorating, sustaining medicine which will strengthen the female organism and enable them to bear easily the fatigues of the day, to sleep well at night, and to rise refreshed and cheerful.

How distressing to see a woman struggling to earn a livelihood or perform her household duties when her back and head are aching, she is so tired she can hardly drag about or stand up, and every movement causes pain, the origin of which is due to some derangement of the female organism.

The Real Reason.

Mr. McCall says that he thanks God that by contributing to the Republican party he helped to save the country from Free Silver. If the testimony proves anything it proves that the insurance magnates were more afraid of criminal prosecution than they were of Free Silver. They knew they were guilty of fraud, bribery of Legislatures, corruption of politics and misuse of trust funds and they felt safer under a Republican administration.

Letter to A. W. Alexander, Centre Hall, Pa.

Dear Sir: Pay more for Devoe; be glad to. It is full-measure and honest. Paint is a watch-dog. How would you like a watch-dog that wouldn't watch from two to five o'clock in the morning? That's short-measure.

How would you like a watch-dog that had a way of wagging his tail at a burglar. That's false paint. The burglar is rain and snow.

Go by the name: Devoe lead-and-zinc.

Fulcaster Wheat Leads.

The Agricultural Department at Pennsylvania State College, on testing various varieties of wheat for sixteen years, finds that Fulcaster wheat leads all others tested likewise. The average yield for the sixteen years was a trifle over 29½ bushels to the acre. Other varieties follow in the order of their importance as to yields: Reliable, Delitz Longberry Red, Ontario Wonder, Dawson's Golden Chaff, Forty Gold or Gold Coin, Royal Red Clawson, Fultz, Rochester Red, Harvest King. The yields range between the figures given for Fulcaster and 24½ bushels.

The experience of farmers and that of the test noted above is at variance. It is generally conceded that Fultz wheat, in a series of years, yields the best.

Some Reasonable Advice.

It may be a piece of superfluous advice to urge people at this season of the year to lay in a supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost sure to be needed before winter is over, and much more prompt and satisfactory results are obtained when taken as soon as a cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system, which can only be done by keeping the remedy at hand. This remedy is so widely known and so altogether good that no one should hesitate about buying it in preference to any other. It is for sale by C. W. Swartz, Tusseyville; F. A.
